UNIFORM CRIME REPORTS

FOREWORD

All crime has motivation. Some crimes are motivated by personal gain, some by jealousy, still others by desperation. Since the passage of the "Hate Crime Statistics Act of 1990" the FBI, through its Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program, has collected data on crimes that are specifically motivated by a preformed negative bias against a group of persons based solely on their race, religion, ethnic origin or sexual-orientation. With the enactment of Public Law 103-322 in September of 1994, disability was added to the list of possible bias motivations for hate crime.

Although the collection of hate crime data was originally a temporary 5-year directive, with the passage of "The Church Arson Prevention Act" Congress permanently extended that mandate. Public Law 104-155, enacted in July of 1996, amends the 1990 Act by striking "for the calendar year 1990 and each succeeding 4 calendar years," and inserting "for each calendar year." This amendment reinforced the FBI's commitment to continue to collect information on crimes motivated by hate.

Law enforcement participation in reporting hate crime to UCR continues to grow. More agencies report each year and progressive training improves the individual officer's ability to recognize bias motivation and report it as such. Though many hate crimes remain unreported, thanks to the continuing efforts of many police departments and the courage of victims and witnesses who come forward, we are working steadily toward our goal of making the reporting of hate crime as comprehensive and thorough as the reporting of all other statistics collected by the UCR Program.

INTRODUCTION

In response to the passage of the Hate Crime Statistics Act of 1990, the Attorney General designated the FBI's Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program to develop a data collection system for its nearly 17,000 voluntary law enforcement agency participants. With the cooperation and assistance of several local and state law enforcement agencies already experienced in the investigation of hate crimes and the collection of related information, comprehensive guidelines for the compilation of hate crime data were established.

Collection Design

The data collection effort is designed to capture information about the type of bias serving as the motivating factor, the nature of the offense, and the characteristics of victims and offenders. When developing this reporting program, planners considered many issues. For example, it was recognized that hate crimes are not separate, distinct offenses, but rather traditional crimes motivated by the offender's bias. An offender may, for example, commit an assault because of his/her bias against the victim's race, religion, sexual orientation, or ethnicity. It was, therefore, not necessary to create new crime categories. To the contrary, hate crime data could be collected by collecting additional information about crime already being reported to UCR. Additionally, the bias motivations reported would be those specifically addressed by the enabling Act, i.e., prejudice against a race, religion, sexual orientation, or ethnic group. Because of the difficulty of ascertaining an offender's subjective motivation in the commission of a crime, bias would be reported only after a law enforcement investigation revealed sufficient objective information that the offender's actions were motivated, in whole or in part, by bias.

The Hate Crime Statistics Program has been endorsed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Sheriffs' Association, the former UCR Data Providers' Advisory Policy Board, the International Association of Directors of Law Enforcement Standards and Training, and the Association of State Uniform Crime Reporting Programs. These endorsements were crucial to the successful implementation of the program, for without law enforcement's voluntary data collection and support, any effort would be futile.

Training

Since the development of the hate crime data collection program, UCR staff members have conducted continual training nationwide. During these training sessions, law enforcement personnel are apprised of the standard methodology used in the investigation and reporting of hate crimes. Law enforcement personnel in all 50 states and the District of Columbia, including city, county, state, and federal agencies, have received training. Personnel from state-level UCR Programs also conduct training for agencies in their respective states.

Program Plans

The Violent Crime and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 amended the Hate Crime Statistics Act to include crimes motivated by a bias against persons with disabilities. In compliance with this amendment, the FBI will collect data on disability bias crimes beginning January 1, 1997. Also, the Church Arson Prevention Act, signed into law in July 1996, amended the Hate Crime Statistics Act by permanently extending the data collection mandate. The removal of the sunset clause from the original statute reinforces the commitment of the FBI to making hate crime data collection a permanent part of the UCR Program.

Participation

In 1995, the FBI received data submissions from approximately 9,600 law enforcement agencies in 45 states and the District of Columbia. The number of agencies reporting within each state is shown in Section II of this publication. (See Table 12.) Reports from these agencies, while not sufficient to allow valid national or regional measures of the volume and types of crimes motivated by hate, offer perspectives on the general nature of hate crime occurrences.

The collection of hate crime statistics at the national level will increase awareness and understanding of the problem and, in turn, will result in its mitigation. This effort will enable law enforcement agencies to better quantify their resource needs and allocate them to the areas where they are most essential. Historically, law enforcement has demonstrated progressive, professional competence in approaching criminal problems. Its response to the hate crime legislation is no exception, and participating law enforcement agencies are to be commended for their efforts in addressing this issue. This report identifies the agencies that serve as the state-level UCR state program administrators in 44 states, the District of Columbia, and U.S. Territories within the United States. (See Appendix.) Individual law enforcement agencies in these states submit their crime reports to the FBI through their respective state agencies. A few states have not as yet instituted the collection of hate crime data. The FBI supports those states which have devised realistic plans for reporting hate crimes. In states where no plans exist, the FBI continues to work directly with individual law enforcement agencies as it does in the six states not having state-level UCR Programs. A majority of non-participating law enforcement agencies and states have cited governmental budgetary constraints and/or lack of personnel resources as reasons for not participating. It should be noted that estimated start-up times are somewhat longer for those states planning to incorporate hate crime data into their National Incident-Based Reporting Systems (NIBRS) than for states collecting data under the current summary system. The FBI believes that the amount of detailed and reliable data which will be available through NIBRS will more than compensate for the short-term delay.

METHODOLOGY

Presented throughout this publication are tables and narrative comments addressing the volume and type of bias-motivated criminal incidents reported to the FBI during 1995. Criminal incidents can involve more than one offense, victim, or offender. For counting purposes, one offense is counted for each victim of a "crime against person." One offense is counted for each distinct operation of "crime against property," regardless of the number of victims. The total number of victims in a given incident is the sum of victims associated with each offense that took place within the incident.

In Section I of this publication are statistics on reported criminal incidents that evidenced bias motivation. Included in the data collection are the offenses of murder and nonnegligent manslaughter; forcible rape; robbery; aggravated assault; burglary; larceny-theft; motor vehicle theft; arson; simple assault; intimidation; and destruction/damage/vandalism of property. The bias categories, as listed in the Hate Crime Statistics Act, are race, religion, ethnicity/national origin, and sexual orientation.

Notification of hate crime incidents is received by the FBI's Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program from city, county, and state law enforcement agencies through various types of media ranging from paper reporting forms to floppy disks and magnetic tapes. Individual reports are submitted for each hate crime incident coming to the attention of law enforcement agencies participating in the UCR Program. Quarterly reports are used to advise that no hate crimes occurred within the reporting jurisdiction. Reports are sent through state-level UCR Programs (see Appendix) or directly to the FBI from individual agencies in states without Programs or whose state Programs have not begun collection.

Data for 1995 were supplied by 9,584 law enforcement agencies representing over 198 million United States inhabitants or approximately 75 percent of the Nation's population. The following table shows the number of agencies represented within each population group and the extent of population coverage.

Section I contains tables showing summary totals for the 9,584 agencies supplying hate crime data in 1995. The total number of hate crime incidents reported to the FBI in 1995 was 7,947. (See Table 1.)

Section II contains tables showing participation levels by state and counts of hate crime incidents reported by individual law enforcement agencies across the country. Caution should be exercised in attempting direct comparisons of hate crime totals among agencies due to the many variables affecting the volume and type of crime from place to place.

SECTION I

Hate Crime Statistics, 1995

During 1995, 7,947 bias-motivated criminal incidents were reported to the FBI by approximately 9,600 law enforcement agencies in 45 states and the District of Columbia. Sixty-one percent of the incidents were motivated by racial bias; 16 percent by religious bias; 13 percent by sexual-orientation bias; and the remainder by ethnicity/national origin bias or multiple biases.

The 7,947 incidents involved 9,895 separate offenses, 10,469 victims, and 8,433 known offenders. (See Table 1.) Most of the incidents (70 percent) involved only one victim and a single offense type (95 percent). Only 34 percent, however, involved one victim and one offender.

Offenses

Crimes against persons composed 72 percent of the 9,895 offenses reported. Intimidation was the single most frequently reported hate crime among all offenses measured, accounting for 41 percent of the total. Following were destruction/damage/vandalism of property, 23 percent; simple assault, 18 percent; and aggravated assault, 13 percent. (See Table 3.)

Twenty persons were murdered in incidents motivated by hate. Racial bias motivated the highest number of murders in 1995: 11. (See Table 4.) Anti-Hispanic offenses accounted for 6 of the 20 homicides, while sexual-orientation bias was the motivation for the remaining 3.

Victims

Eight of every 10 of the 10,469 reported hate crime victims were individuals (people), while the remaining were businesses, religious organizations, or varied other targets.

Of the 10,469 victims in 1995, 68 percent were targets of crimes against persons. Six of every 10 victims were attacked because of their race, with bias against blacks accounting for 38 percent of the total. (See Table 1.) Only crimes motivated by religious bias showed a higher percentage of crimes against property rather than persons. (See Table 4.) Sixty-two percent of incidents involving victims targeted because of their religion involved crimes against property. (See Table 9.)

Offenders

Law enforcement agencies reported 8,433 known offenders to be associated with the 7,947 incidents recorded in 1995. Fifty-nine percent of the known offenders were white, and 27 percent were black. (See Table 11.)

Offenders were unknown for 3,058 or 39 percent of the incidents. As reflected in Table 3, 37 percent of the known offenders were reported in connection with the crime of intimidation. In crimes against persons, victims or witnesses are frequently able to assist with the identification of offenders.

Considering the types of racial bias involved, 5 of every 10 white offenders were identified in connection with anti-black offenses. Six of every 10 black offenders identified were associated with anti-white offenses. (See Table 5.) Law enforcement agencies were least likely to be able to identify offenders of religious bias crimes. In 1995, only 437 offenders were identified in connection with 1,277 incidents. (See Table 1.) In most cases where religious bias was the motivating factor, the offenses were crimes against property for which clearance rates are historically lower.

Locations

Twenty-nine percent of hate crime incidents in 1995 occurred in residences. Following closely were highways, roads, alleys, or streets accounting for

22 percent. The remaining incidents were widely distributed among varied locations. (See Table 2.)

SECTION II

Jurisdictional Hate Crime Statistics, 1995

Nearly 9,600 law enforcement agencies covering about 75 percent of the Nation's population or over 198 million inhabitants supplied information for inclusion in this publication. The number of reporting agencies by state, along with their corresponding population coverage, is shown in Table 12. Also indicated is the number of agencies recording hate crimes during 1995, as well as the number of incidents reported by those jurisdictions. Hate crime occurrences were recorded by 16 percent of the participating agencies, while the remainder reported that no bias crimes were brought to their attention.

The individual jurisdictional figures are presented in six tables delineating city, suburban county, rural county, university/college, state law enforcement agencies, and other agencies. To be included in these statistics, law enforcement agencies must have submitted data for at least one quarter of calendar year 1995. The figures, therefore, do not represent complete 12-month totals for every agency listed. Due to the many factors affecting the nature and volume of crime, care must be exercised in making any comparisons among agencies, even where agencies reported for comparable timeframes. All factors must be considered before valid comparisons can be achieved.
